CONTRACTS were signed in the offices of Selwyn and Company recently which re-united two of the undoubted stars of the theatrical world and incidentally bridged a gap of seventeen years. By chance, the contracts were signed within a few minutes of each other.

To one was affixed the signature of Arnold Daly; to the other Nat Goodwin. When Jesse Lynch Williams' play, "Why Marry?" is produced on Broadway some time in November by Selwyn and Company, these two real stars of the theatrical world will be seen together for the first time since 1900 and for the first time in their careers in America.

In 1899, the late Charles Frohman took Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott, then his wife, to London to appear in Clyde Fitch's "The Cowboy and the Girl." Other productions followed over there and then Nat Goodwin became a manager himself in 1900. His first big success was "When We Were Twenty-one." On the company, besides himself, were Maxine Elliott, Constance Collier playing a perfectly good vampire, and Arnold Daly playing the role of the Imp.

Number Ten Conquest at Nelson.

Ray McKee, of the Edison Co., may be the Douglas Fairbanks of next season. In a comedy entitled "A Duke for a Day," on program 10 of the Conquest Pictures which is at the Nelson today, he again shows himself a comedian of no mean ability. He has the same boyishness, enthusiasm and spontaneity that has made Douglas Fairbanks so irresistible to the American theatre-goer, and we predict a great future for this young star. Mildred Havens plays opposite him in a very natural and creditable portrayal of a happy, fun-loving young American girl.

The other feature of this program is the exciting Civil war story told by the blue-blooded Kentucky horse, Black Beauty. This adaptation of Anna Sewall's famous story is one with so much interest and charm that it can not fail to be popular. Peggy Adams, the little Edison star, is charming as a belle of the '60s, and Pat O'Malley is such a hero as any girl would love—or any horse, either. "Don Fulano" is a beautiful and well-trained horse that makes his screen debut in this production and makes an appeal for his kind. Shorter subjects are "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," "Ostrich Farming in South Africa," and an interesting and exciting half-reel of trout-fishing.

Princess Showing Metro Production.

For today and tomorrow the Princess has headlined a Metro production featuring Mabel Taliaferro. The play is called "The Jury of Fate."

As Jacques Labordie, after a tremendous battle with the teacherous currents of the dangerous St. Lawrence river, Mabel Taliaferro is drowned as Jeanne Labordie she is saved. Playing both roles in a photoplay that calls for much physical exertion is no easy matter under any circumstances, but had the delightful little star not been an expert swimmer she most certainly would have succumbed to the currents of the St. Lawrence. As Jacques Labordie she is compelled to lie absolutely still in the water while the current sweeps her down upon the rocks. She must be fully dressed even to her boots, and it required remarkable nerve and unquestioned ability as a swimmer for Mabel Taliaferro to undertake the task she carried to a thrilling successful finish.

Road Attraction Coming to Grand.

As a play "One Girl's Experience," which comes to the Grand next Monday, is acclaimed by the theatre-goers as tremendous success. It is fascinating mainly because the unexpected always happens. The big thing about the play is the character of Lucy Fairweather admirably played and wonderful in its childlike simplicity and trust. Her love for Paul so true and pure and so forgiving and reasonable is in itself enough to commend the play to thinking people, especially to the people who love a love story sweetly told. One of the striking features of this gripping story of a girl who works for a living in New York City is in the second act where Lucy, for her honor,

New Serial Starts at Dixie.

"The Fighting Trail," a melodramatic serial of fifteen episodes, each in two parts, begins at the Dixie today.

The group of episodes of this new Vitaphone serial, picked indiscriminately but showing the first, are enough to indicate that the complete production will prove to be one of the best continuous releases thus far placed on the market. It has all the earmarks of a sure money maker for an exhibitor, as it will surely influence those who see the first episode to follow it to the end. And it leaves nothing to be desired in the to-be-continued next-week type of picture—thrills in every episode, a connected story that is reasonable and each chapter ends with sustained suspense.

The basic plot contains enough possibilities to be material for the fifteen episodes. The story, which was written by Cyrus Townsend Brady and J. Stuart Blackton, concerns the attempt to wrest the possession of a mine from its rightful owners by a band of criminals, headed by and in the employ of a German secret agent, whose belligerent desire for the mine lies in the fact that it is the source of a mineral that is invaluable in the manufacture of a newly invented high explosive. Each episode consists of some new plot to do away with the owners of the mine, who are giving its product to the United States and the thrill is mostly miraculous escapes from the traps laid by the conspirators.

This serial has no one outstanding feature. It is good all the way through and so evenly balanced that it would be difficult to select any one point as better than another.

Change Program at Hippodrome.

"The Belle Isle Beauties" company offer a change of program at the Hippodrome today. This is the third change of the week and will be presented at each of the remaining performances of the engagement. Next week Mack's "Yankee Doodle Girls" will occupy the boards. This latter organization comes here highly recommended. It is said to be one of the better class of musical tableaux for which Hippodrome patrons have developed quite a penchant.

"Man Without a Country" Tonight.

No film production of the present season has aroused more interest than Jewel's "The Man Without a Country," which will be shown at the Grand Theatre today and tomorrow, matinee and night. The film follows closely Edward Everett Hale's patriotic classic, so well known to every American reader. The wanderings and adventures of Philip Nolan, "the first American slacker," are depicted on a lavish scale. The lesson of patriotism and love of country, set forth in the story, are driven home in a forceful, thrilling manner. "The Man Without a Country" is a production that will do much to arouse patriotic sentiment, and to offset whatever of slacker sentiment may be found. No one can view this remarkable production without a quickening of his patriotism, and a resolve to do just a little bit for the country that he loves.

"CLOSE-UPS"

"Hell" and "damn" being banished from respectable comedies, comedians of a certain stripe are now making liberal use of the word "fool." Soon it will go, too, and here's hoping that every actor who can't be funny in any other way will go with it.

A CONQUEST PROGRAM

"Black Beauty" the famous story of Anna Sewall is the basis of the leading number in this program. The book is no better than the film production. "Ostrich Farming in Africa" is another interesting educational reel. "A Duke for a Day" is a screaming comedy number in which Ray McKee fully maintains his reputation as one of the best boy actors before the public today. "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" is a good comedy drama, the picture presentation of Robert Browning's poem. "Angling for Trout" will delight the souls of fishermen. This program is getting to be more popular each day on account of its appeal to every one.

TOMORROW: "Those Terrible Telegrams" a comedy, "The Last of the Troubadors" drama, "Getting the Coin" comedy and "American War News" a big war feature.

"The Man Without

A lavish screen production of Edward Everett Hale's classic of patriotism. A warning to slackers. A message to patriots.
Unknowingly writing for posterity, Edward Everett Hale was thinking of only one land when he conceived "The Man Without a Country"—else he could not have forged its matchless beauty.

Yet today—translated under pressure of war in scores of languages—the poem of every land are finding in it a new love of country—love for that freedom which this story has shown them is the most precious thing in life. Every man and woman and child in Fairmont should see this great production at the through my married life Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been a great help to me—has saved me

many doctor bills and lots of suffering. I have taken it during expectancy and found it a wonderful help in keeping me well and strong, and my children are all healthy. I also took it when I was suffering from a nervous break-down and it restored me to health. I really do not see how I could have gotten along without

has been a great help to me and will also help other women who are ailing
if they will give it a fair trial. No matter how much I would say in praise of this medicine I could not do justice to it. I am always advising my friends to take it."

Mrs. A. R. Hicks, who resides at 1719 Virginia Ave., Huntington, W.
Va., says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was a great help to me during expectancy. My health seemed to fail—I became all run-down, weak and nervous, could not eat nor sleep and was nauseated all the time.
I was a very bad condition and even the doctor did not think I would get along all right, but I began taking "Favorite Prescription" and it brought me through in splendid health and my baby was strong and healthy. I do recommend "Favorite Prescription"
as being a splendid medicine."

Mrs. Mae Castle, who lives at 1719
4th Ave., Huntington, W. Va., says:
"After my oldest child came I was left with weakness, never seemed to get strong afterwards. This womanly weakness caused me to become all run-down, weak and nervous. I doctered and took different medicines,
but did not get any better. I kept this up for about ten years and was getting very much discouraged when I learned of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and this medicine along with the "Pleasant Pellets," "Healing Suppositories" and "Lotion Tablets" completely cured me—built me up to health and strength. Women who are suffering with a weakness of any sort will find relief in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."
